As the Music Director of the Allentown Symphony, PA (www.AllentownSymphony.org) a professional orchestra with a 3.2 million budget that performs about 28 concerts a year, Diane Wittry has established a reputation for her creative programming and innovative approach to concert formats. She has a proven ability to develop an orchestra musically and an extensive knowledge and experience with orchestral repertoire. The Stamford Advocate, CT, described Diane Wittry as "a conductor who specializes in finding creative ways to make the music fresh, accessible, and exciting." She has been a tireless advocate for the development of extensive educational programs and is very involved with the Allentown Symphony's new El Sistema Program for underprivileged children.

Other orchestras that Diane Wittry has been the Music Director and Conductor of include the Norwalk Symphony (CT), the Ridgewood Symphony, (NJ), the Southern California Sinfonia (CA), the Lamar Chamber Orchestra, and the Symphony of Southeast Texas, (Beaumont, TX), where her work garnered the League of American Orchestra's Helen M Thompson Award. She also was the Music Director and Conductor of the Greater Miami Youth Symphony (FL), a program with 200 students, three orchestras, and 12 chamber music ensembles, and the Meremblum Junior Symphony (CA).

Diane Wittry began her conducting studies with Daniel Lewis at the University of Southern California, from which she graduated with honors. While still a student, she was the recipient of a conducting fellowship from the Aspen Music Festival. Her other teachers and mentors include Michael Tilson Thomas, Sir Peter Maxwell Davies, Gustav Meier and Jorge Mester; and she worked with the renowned Russian conductor Leonid Korchmar of the Kirov Opera, and Jorma Panula from Finland.

As a teacher, Diane Wittry, is a frequent guest lecturer at the Juilliard School, the Manhattan School of Music, the Curtis Institute of Music, New York University Steinhardt School of Music, as well as other Universities and Colleges. She has been a faculty member at Lamar University (Beaumont, TX) where she successfully recruited a large class of string students from Europe and Asia for the Lamar Chamber Orchestra, and a lecturer at the University of Southern California Thornton School of Music where she taught conducting courses. Diane Wittry is sought after as a clinician, adjudicator, and conductor for All-State Orchestras. More recently, she conducted the Oregon All-State Orchestra, and she was the featured Master class Conducting Teacher at the national College Orchestra Directors Association (CODA).

Diane Wittry has taught national and international conducting courses and workshops through the International Conductors Institute, the South Carolina Conductor's Institute, the New York Conducting Institute, the Pacific Northwest Conducting Institute, and the Beyond the Baton Conducting Seminars and Workshops. She has served as a National Conducting Mentor for regional music directors in their first or second year through the League of American Orchestras, as well as being a frequent faculty member for the League's National Leadership Academy. She is also a part of the National Conducting Mentoring Committee through the Conductors Guild and a guest speaker at national conferences.

An award winning author and scholar, her book, "Beyond the Baton", (Oxford University Press, 2007) (www.BeyondtheBaton.com) was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize and has become a standard, both nationally and internationally, in the field. Her most recent book "Baton Basics - Communicating Music Through Gestures" (Oxford University Press, Dec.2014) is being utilized by conducting classes across the country.

Over the years, Diane Wittry has received many honors and awards, including the American Symphony Orchestra League's Helen M. Thompson Award for outstanding artistic leadership of a regional orchestra. She has been the subject of profiles in The New York Times and Newsweek. Ms. Wittry received an Outstanding Achievement Award, Allentown, PA, the Women of Excellence Award in Beaumont, Texas, the Arts Ovation Award and the Woman of Distinction Award from Allentown, PA. And she is only the third American to be named - in recognition of her leadership in the arts and humanities - the recipient of the prestigious Fiorino Doro Award from the City of Vinci, Italy.

Recently, Diane Wittry has also established a reputation as a composer. Her orchestral piece, "Mist" was premiered by the Allentown Symphony Orchestra and has had many performances and radio broadcasts nationally and internationally. It is available for streaming at Amazon.com in a recording by the Slovak State Philharmonic (Click here to listen). Her other compositions, Lamentoso, after the rain, Concerto for Home-made Instruments, Ode to Joy Fanfare, and Leaves, have all received premieres, excellent reviews, and multiple performances. Her music is published by the Theodore Presser Company.

Diane Wittry has been a juror for the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers' (ASCAP) Annual Rudolf Nissim Composer's Competition in New York, an adjudicator for new compositions for the artist residency program at I-Park in Connecticut, and she has also served as a music panelist for National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, DC.
